Latin III Syllabus

Course Description / Prerequisites ( A minimum grade of C in Latin II ) # 4122 Latin IV

The goal of this course is ultimately to develop your ability to read Latin in the original with ever increasing ease and speed, comprehension, and enjoyment, while learning about an important moment of literary and political history. By the completion of this course, you will have improved your understanding of Latin morphology (declensions, conjugations) and syntax (sentence structure and constructions), and expanded both your Latin and English vocabulary. You should be able to recognize some features of style and rhetorical devices typical to Roman authors of the Classical Period, and identify figures of speech. You will also gain greater insight into the cultural, social, and political world surrounding the Roman world in the 1 st century B.C. →1 st century AD.

Grading/Assessments/Homework/Make-up/Extra Help Policies

- ✓ Homework Preparation & Participation (18 %): Daily homework. Sometimes you correct it & pass it in; sometimes you pass it in & I correct it; sometimes we do it orally and you don't pass it in. However, you receive a grade every day: 2 if present with your homework, and 1 if present without your homework (excused absences are 'excused!'). Bottom line...It isn't graded, but it counts. Do it!
- ✓ Quizzes (25%): There are many quizzes! You get to drop the lowest one (provided you have taken them all!) They are announced; but sometimes only the class prior. It is your responsibility to have a contact person, or email me, if you are absent. A missed quiz must be made up within one week of when it was given.
- ✓ Oral Language Skills (8%): You will be expected to read passages of simple Latin with accurate Latin pronunciation.
- ✓ Tests (17%): There will be Tests as you finish longer works, or correlated sections of shorter works.
- ✓ Projects (23%): You will have plenty of time to work on projects; so pace yourself. Projects are usually a great opportunity to show off your creativity, resourcefulness, individuality, and even your wit. Make sure to use the projects to your advantage!
- ✓ Final (9%): Date is scheduled and announced. Please note that I cannot sanction a date, time, or schedule change for the final exam due to a family scheduling conflict (e.g. a family vacation which has been planned, but our school year gets extended due to many snowdays; thus finals are later...). Such matters must be brought to the attention of Mr. Smith only. Tibi multas gratias!
- ✓ Extra Help: Before school: 6:30-7:15, most days after school, and by appointment
